How they met

Dave and Susie Nelson attended the same college in West Virginia. Susie was a commuting student and lived nearby. Dave accompanied a fraternity brother to Susie's home, the intention being that the brother would ask Susie for a date. When, during the course of the visit, the fraternity brother did not issue the invitation to Susie, Dave wrote a note to her, leaving the note with Susie's mother. The note asked her to attend a dance with him. The rest is history.

Dick and Janet Dyer met at a Valentine's Day College Mixer at Western Michigan. She challenged her roommate that she would "dance with him (Dick) the most." Later she decided to invite him to the TWIRP Dance, a Sadie Hawkins celebration which means The Woman Is Required To Pay. At that time Janet's sister stated unequivocally that she "knew" they would eventually marry.

Tom and Pat Sack met when Tom was an usher at her sister's wedding. They were both attending Iowa State; Pat was a junior and Tom was working on his Masters Degree. Even though Pat was seeing someone else, they hit it off at once. They were encouraged by her mother who was very fond of this young man. They credit her for the beginning of the romance.

Once out of school people take that first step into the adult world and their career takes shape. Then they meet that very "special person" and the magic begins...

Tom and Bonnie Fay both attended the College of William and Mary, but did not meet there. Tom was teaching at Poquoson High School (it was then located at the present PMS) when Bonnie came to join the staff. The principal introduced them at the lunch table. Later on, a student decided to play matchmaker, writing a note to Tom that Bonnie wanted him to invite her to the Holly Ball and telling Bonnie that Mr. Fay wanted to ask her to the Ball. Their first date was a PHS basketball game! And they did join the other faculty and students at their formal date at the Holly Ball.

Don Hirschberg was the principal at Gloucester when a friend of Nancy's who was dating the principal at Matthews fixed them up.

Olen Evans was coaching football at PHS, and Emily was working at the Naval Weapons Station when PHS head coach, Billy Renn, who was dating Emily's sister, introduced them. They met at a football game. Olen had another date that night, but Emily became his interest from then on.

Who ever said a life in education is dull!

Others met while dating someone else. Ed Spain, teacher at PHS, had taken a date to a Superbowl party. There he met (his wife) Diane, and after talking with her during the party, he found her more interesting than football and asked her out the following week.
